Important Notice for Unitholders

Update on Distributions for the following Funds:

- Franklin Templeton Global Aggregate Bond Fund
- Franklin Templeton Multisector Bond Fund
- Templeton Global Bond Plus Fund

For the month ended 31 March 2020, the Responsible Entity has determined that no distribution will be made for the following funds:

- Franklin Templeton Global Aggregate Bond Fund (ARSN 160 124 096);
- Franklin Templeton Multisector Bond Fund (ARSN 137 298 714); and
- Templeton Global Bond Plus Fund (ARSN 127 316 250);

(each a Fund and together the Funds).

This decision reflects the sharp depreciation of the Australian dollar over the course of March which has resulted in insufficient distributable income for the Funds.

Although there is coupon interest on the bonds received by the Fund, distributions are based on the taxable income of the Fund, which also includes any gains or losses from the sale or maturity of the underlying instruments including foreign currency forwards.

The impact of the depreciation of the Australian dollar is that the value of the foreign securities in the Fund increases (and depending on the hedge, often in the same proportion with the losses on the hedges). However, differences arise from the timing of when the gains and losses are included in the distributable income, which is based on when these positions are realised. It is important to note that generally there is no real impact on the unit price of the Fund as the losses on the foreign currency forwards are usually offset by the gains on the underlying bonds.

Our portfolio management teams are monitoring markets and the Australian dollar closely. This is an unusual period of volatility and once volatility normalises we expect to be in a position to distribute again.

However, the amount of distributions may vary from period to period and there may be other periods in which no distribution is made.

The level of distributable income is not necessarily an indicator of investment returns.
